SUCCESS

"Seniors are again leaving high school and going on to colleges, universities or other schools of higher education. There are some who will be going directly into business or assuming the responsibilities of marriage and a home. Each will be looking to the future with some goal indicating success. What sense of value one may have may be very different from another. To one, money is the index of success in life. To another it may be social prominence or successful business. To still another it may be a happy home with a husband and family.

Whatever the goal each may choose, it is important to have a plan for attaining this height of achievement. In this fast changing world with new ideals and appreciations, it seems important to be aware of those things which come first and to what we should place a sense of value. Ideas and ideals usually evolve from the influence of a home and we are all influenced to a great extent in our appreciations by those we come in contact with each day.

Being happy is probably one of the greatest of life's goals and each may have a different appreciation of happiness. We usually find those people who have good health, peace of mind and a life pattern are the ones who have the greatest joys in life. Let's look to the future and use the good judgment that we now have as mature seniors to be concerned over a true sense of value that will bring lasting joy and happiness, not only today but in the years to come."

Vice-Principal

Our Vice Principal, Mr. Slate, works with Mr. Easterbrook and the administrative staff to maintain the high level of efficiency that has been achieved at McLane. His never-ending responsibilities make Mr. Slate one of the busiest and most indispensable persons in the organization of our school activities.

Mr. Chester M. Slate
